Mt. Holyoke Prof. To Give "Modern Poets"

The Bread Loaf School of English will number among its instructors this summer Dr. George Frisbie Whicher, of Amherst College, and Mrs. Harriet Fox Whicher, now a member of the faculty of Mount Holyoke College. Professor Whicher will give a course in Creative Writing, which will be conducted on the studio plan with frequent individual conferences. In this course students will have the opportunity of working out their original literary ideas in the form of verse, short stories or familiar essays.

Associated With Dr. Frost

Professor Whicher, who was closely associated with Robert Frost during the time Mr. Frost was a member of the Amherst faculty, is the joint author with G. M. Whicher of "On the Tibur Road", verse translations of Horace, and is author of critical articles in The Cambridge History of American Literature, The Yale Review, and The Nation. Since 1919 he has been editor of The Amherst Graduates' Quarterly. Professor Whicher holds the following degrees: B. A., Amherst 1910; M. A., Columbia, 1911; Ph. D., Columbia 1915.

Before he came to the Amherst faculty in 1916, he had taught at the University of Illinois and in the Columbia Summer School. He has supplied at Mout Holyoke College and has been a member of the Massachusetts University Extension Bureau. Profes-

D. U. DISTRICT CONFERENCE HELD

First District Delegates Guests of Middlebury Chapter—National Secretary Presides

Representatives of the New England and McGill chapters of Delta Upsilon fraternities held the Provincial Conference of the first district here Friday and Saturday. The visiting delegates, two undergraduates and an alumnus from each of ten colleges represented, were the guests of the Middlebury chapter.

Herbert Wheaton, Columbia '99, national secretary of the fraternity presided at the banquet and smoker held in Hepburn Hall Friday evening. The principal speakers of the evening were William H. Botsford '98 and President Paul D. Moody, who attended as a guest. Friday afternoon and Saturday morning were devoted to business sessions held at the Addison House. Arnold B. Swift '22, Julian A. Klock '23 represented the local undergraduate chapter and Professor Frank W. Cady '99, the alumni. Professor Arthur R. Davis '15 was the Wesleyan graduate delegate.

The colleges represented were Amherst, Bowdoin, Brown, Colby, McGill, Middlebury, Technology, Tufts, Wesleyan and Williams. The Middlebury alumni and local resident members of the fraternity who attended were A. S. Harriman '97, W. S. Botsford '98, F. W. Cady '99, B. L. Stafford '01, A. W. Eddy '04, P. C. Voter, Bowdoin '09, W. C. Bosworth '11, A. R. Davis, Wesleyan '15, H. H. Stone '18, G. O. Coolidge '20, A. W. Furber '20 and W. A. Huggard '20.

The conference will be held at Wesleyan next year.

FINAL EXAMINATIOIS TO BEGIN MAY 31 THIS YEAR

Notwithstanding the posting of the schedule of final examinations by the Registrar last week, no final action has yet been taken by the faculty in regard to the proposed shortening of examination periods to two hours. The tentative schedule posted last week gives Wednesday, May 31 as the first day of examinations, and terminates Friday, June 9. If the faculty, at their next meeting, rule that examinations shall be shortened to two-hour periods, the present schedule will probably be revised to include all of the tests in one week, as was done in 1918-19. The proposed innovation, it is understood, is aimed to offset the shortening of the college year, made necessary by advancing the date of Commencement one week.

CHEMISTRY SUBJECT OF VOCATION TALK

Professor Jones of Harvard Lectures Monday

Chemistry Basic Industry of Widespread and Growing Importance

The series of vocational lectures was continued Monday afternoon by Professor Grinnell Jones of Harvard, who spoke before a large audience in the lecture room of Chemistry Building on "Chemistry as a Profession."

"Although not fully appreciated by the public Chemistry is a basic industry of widespread and constantly growing importance," said Professor Jones. "A quarter of a million of separate chemical compounds have been discovered and the number is constantly increasing.

"A Chicago professor claims now to have performed the transmutation of elements, a process which has been sought for since the birth of chemistry. If his claim proves true, it means that a new epoch in the history of science has begun.

Chemistry Related to Sciences

"Chemistry is closely related to the other sciences such as astronomy, physiology, psychology, biology, and geology. The astronomers discovered the element helium in the sun even before they found it on earth. They claim now to have discovered another new element in the nebulae."

Professor Jones grouped chemical work under three main classes: (1) investigation and research, (2) manufacturing, and (3) analysis to determine

PRESIDENT SPEAKS ON "THE MINISTRY"

Vocational Lecture In Chemistry Friday

Subject Treated From Modern and Liberal Point of View

President Paul Dwight Moody spoke on "The Ministry" in a vocational lecture Friday afternoon in Chemistry Building. The president considered his subject from a strictly modern and liberal point of view, interspersing many personal stories and anecdotes from his wide experience as preacher and senior chaplain in the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

"The importance of the minister", said President Moody is shown by the fact that every small town has at least one minister although it may not have any doctor or lawyer. Even in the most remote borders of civilization, people feel the need of a preacher to baptize their children, to visit their sick, and to bury their dead. Ministers act as a preventive to moral looseness in the same way that the police act as a preventive to crime. They keep the world running on an even keel.

Pastor Leads Varied Life

"A typical day's work of a minister begins with a forenoon of study. The wise minister holds strictly to this rule; he must, or he will run dry. A man can not preach more than twelve really good sermons in a year, and the average preacher does not come near this number. However, the world has never been saved by preaching and never will be. It is equally important that the afternoon be occupied by calling for the most successful pastor is the one who lives among his people. The minister must be ready to answer emergency calls at any time of day, to give recommendations, and to act as general utility man in all social activi-

THE CHASE PUBLISHES TRIBUTES TO DR. HEPBURN

The special edition of The Chase, a monthly magazine published in the interests of the Chase National Bank, commemorating the late Hon. A. Barton Hepburn '71, has been received by The Campus and is in the library reading room.

The magazine contains two recent photographs of Mr. Hepburn and glowing tributes to his memory from many of his famous friends, including Albert H. Wiggin, President Harding, Nicholas Murray Butler, Paul Dwight Moody, Don C. Seitz and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Irving Bacheller writes very vividly of his friendship with Mr. Hepburn. The Chase also prints the resolution drawn up by the New York Alumni Association and many extracts from the hundreds of letters of sympathy that were received at the time of Mr. Hepburn's death.

DEBATING SEASON OPENS FRIDAY

St. Lawrence Team to Argue In Mead Chapel

TRIANGULAR CONTEST

Negative Team to Debate at Burlington

Announcement was made this morning by Professor Davison, that President Paul D. Moody had accepted the invitation of the Wetherell Debating Club to preside at the debate with St. Lawrence University to be held in the Mead Memorial Chapel Friday evening at 8:00 P. M. At the same time the final speaking order of the Middlebury teams was given, as follows: Affirmative, Gollnick, Lawton, Klimm (captain), Cooley (alternate); Negative, Parry, Savitt, Adams, (captain), Bassett (alternate).

After several weeks of practice, the Middlebury 'varsity debating teams will defend their championship in the triangular league gained last season when they defeated teams from both St. Lawrence University and The University of Vermont. Friday evening they will debate the question—"Resolved: That employees on inter-state railroads be forbidden by Federal Law to strike". The question to be discussed is particularly appropriate at this time, due to the present controversy between capital and labor. It is hoped that the members of the college will attend in large numbers.

Affirmative Team Stays Here

The Middlebury affirmative team, which will debate in the Mead Memorial Chapel, will be led by Lester E. Klimm, '24, a veteran of last year's contest with the St. Lawrence men, and will consist of Gollnick '22, Lawton '23, and Cooley '25, as alternate. The negative team, which will make the trip to Burlington, will be captained by Murray Adams, '22, who led the 'varsity against the Vermont debaters last year, and will consist of Parry '24, also a member of last year's team and Savitt '25, the only freshman to make the speaking list, while Bassett '25 is alternate on the team.

According to information received this morning the St. Lawrence negative team to debate in the Mead Chapel will consist of Howard B. Churchill '22, Ellis L. Manning '22, Harold F. Studwill '22, captain and Robert D. Dullea '25 (alternate).

Teams Well Coached

The teams have been holding practice debates, usually twice a week, following which members of the faculty, coaching the teams, would offer criticism. During the last week, Professor Kline acted as the individual coach of the affirmative team, while Professor Harrington worked with the Negative team. Professor Abbott coached both teams during the early part of the year. General arrangements for the debate have been in the hands of Professor Davison, head coach of debating.

Debating Popular

The earliest activities in argumentation at Middlebury were probably in connection with the Philomathesian Society. This was a literary society, and although the date of its founding is unknown it is certain that it was in existence in 1802. At the weekly meeting of this society different questions were discussed pro and con by members previously appointed to speak on these subjects. The society existed until 1868.

VOL. XVIII March 22, 1922 NO. 22

The College Visitor

How many realize that the treatment of the college visitor constitutes a very effective, though unconscious, method of advertising? The opinion, whether favorable or otherwise, which the visitor forms of the college and its undergraduates during a short stay, is the one which will remain with him and which he will transmit to others, for he usually has no further opportunity for investigation of college life and customs. First impressions in his case are also final ones, for they form his only basis of opinion. Is it not important then that these first impressions should be of the right sort?

Often they are dependent upon the word or act of a single individual. Encountering a politely disinterested student who meets his query indifferently, the visitor would not be interested to gain further information or disposed to regard favorably the spirit of a college producing such a student. On the other hand, a student sufficiently interested in college welfare to show hospitality to guests, and willing to sacrifice a few moments in explanation or assistance would make a lasting impression. While small acts of courtesy may seem trivial, in reality they have consequences which later react on the college to its advantage or disadvantage.

The student might profitably go a step farther than mere courtesy. Information concerning the characteristic features of college activity, facts and bits of history about the college buildings would serve to interest the outsider and to call his attention to the desirable features of Middlebury life. Show an interest in him in order to get him interested! Opportunity will present itself repeatedly during athletic contests, conventions, Junior Week and the like. Why not take a constructive attitude toward the college visitor, rather than one of indifference?

Exchanges

The institution of Campus exchange privileges with over two hundred leading preparatory school papers throughout the country, provides an interesting check upon the work of the Press Club and The Campus as a means of college advertising. Since the inauguration of the system several weeks ago The Campus exchange list has increased rapidly and a growing number of high school papers now acknowledge receipt of The Campus weekly. And perhaps even more gratifying than this is it to note the evidence of Press Club activity. In practically all cases, the secondary school alumni items are well interspersed with activities of the high school alumni who have won some sort of recognition at Middlebury. The Press Club is to be commended for the evident efficiency with which it handles the school paper end of their activity.

This sort of intimate relationship between college and high school provides advertising of the better sort since constant association with the college and with the older school mates now at college leads to an intimate acquaintanceship with the high school undergraduate that is highly profitable both to school and college.

It would be well if some arrangement could be made whereby The Campus exchanges could be put on file for undergraduate perusal at any time, for undoubtedly there would be many who would enjoy this privilege. At present, however, we know of no suitable location for an exchange reading room. The Campus office, of necessity, can not remain open at all times for visiting readers; the library is already too crowded; and the social halls at Pearsons and Hepburn would only convenience the respective colleges. Nevertheless we feel that some arrangement should be made—that we owe this courtesy to the high schools particularly—and we would welcome suggestions.

This Is The Day Of The Dray Horse

After all, it is hardly surprising that so few signs of recognition were exchanged between restaurant and hotel keepers and the thirty-five wild Kentucky steers that ran wild in the lower West Side of New York last Saturday afternoon.

After having explained to us the genesis of the firm name adopted by producers of "The Honest" tooth paste, we challenge Prof. Bonney to compile a volume of solutions to his trig puzzles and dub it the "Bon-Ami."

As a stimulus to like achievement, on the eve of its departure for Montpelier the Glee Club may do well to recall the words of the St. Johnsbury Caledonian music critic a year ago, when he ventured in praise of the Club's performance, "The boys all wore dress suits and looked very well".

Always willing to be corrected, we assert that the forthcoming is to be the longest examination period on record. Prof. Terry has announced his final examination for April 1st and for those who have courage to read it, the schedule on Old Chapel bulletin board sets the final requiem for Friday, June 9th.

How appropriate, we quake, that it should all end on Friday.

To continue, New York may have its congested Fifth Ave., and Forty-Second Street, and London its seething Trafalgar Square, but Middlebury has her own second-floor entrance to Old Chapel.

But no safety-zones that we have been able to discover.

SEEK AID FOR WETHERELL FUND

Committee Solicits Subscriptions To Preparatory Debating Prizes Given Annually

The committee appointed by The Wetherell Debating Club to solicit contributions to The Wetherell Prize Fund is sending out the following letter to all Professor Wetherell's former students and friends. Members of the faculty, students now in college, and townspeople who knew Professor Wetherell will also wish to have a share in this work. Contributions may be handed directly to Mr. J. A. Fletcher or to the members of the committee, who will see that they are duly acknowledged. The letter which has been sent out, follows:

THE WETHERELL DEBATING CLUB
Middlebury College

March 15, 1922

Dear Middlebury Friend:

Will you help to perpetuate at Middlebury the memory of the name and work of Professor Archibald D. Wetherell, of the Class of 1905?

The Wetherell Debating Club is striving to continue the work in which he was so greatly interested, and is receiving excellent support from the men of the College. As you have doubtless read in the current catalogue, the Wetherell Prize of $20 has been awarded the past two years to the men who have shown greatest ability in debating. The money was donated by three of Professor Wetherell's former students and is assured for this year.

In order to put the memorial on a permanent basis, however, a foundation of at least $1000 is necessary. Such a foundation will honor for all time Professor Wetherell's memory. At the same time, the annual prize will stimulate interest in the activity to which Professor Wetherell was so much devoted.

To make the foundation most significant, all of Professor Wetherell's former students and friends should have a share in the work. The aged father and mother have heard of the proposed memorial and have asked to contribute $20 each toward the fund. Won't you give what you can?

At Commencement an enlarged photograph of Professor Wetherell, a gift from friends of his, will be hung in his old classroom, with appropriate exercises. We want to announce at that time the completion of the Wetherell Prize Fund. In order that we may make plans to that end, won't you send your contribution just as soon as you can? Please return the enclosed slip at once, indicating the amount of your contribution.

President Paul D. Moody has extended the Committee the courtesy of the college offices for handling the necessary work, and Mr. John A. Fletcher has kindly consented to receive and acknowledge all contributions. Money should be sent to Mr. Fletcher. Pledges should be sent to Prof. W. E. Davison, 18 Pleasant St. The names of the contributors will be printed in The Campus.

Won't you join in making this memorial to "Toot" a worthy one?

Loyally yours,

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of The Campus:—

I have noticed the interesting and enterprising notice in the last issue of The Campus, regarding prospects for increased attendance next fall.

There is, however, an inadvertent mistake in the statement that the restriction placed upon the number of admissions last year had not been voted this year. As a matter of fact this is incorrect. That restriction has been interpreted by the trustees to hold until reversed, and the deans understand that this year, as last year, the admission of freshmen will be limited to 100 men and 60 women. This restriction will continue until dormitory facilities enable us to increase the number.

F. A. SIMMONS '02 TO LECTURE ON BANKING

Mr. F. A. Simmons of the class of 1902, treasurer of Harris Forbes and Company, Investment Bankers, and located with the Boston branch of the firm, will give, as a part of the vocational series, a lecture on "Investment Banking" Thursday, March 23, at 7 p. m., in the lecture room of Chemistry Building.

Mr. Simmons prepared for college in Burr and Burton Seminary, Manchester, Vt., and entered college in 1898. After graduation he was principal and superintendent of schools, Pittsford, Vt., from 1902 to 1904. He was in business in Manchester, Vt., from 1904 to 1907 and has been associated with Harris, Forbes and Company in Boston since 1907, being a member of the firm and treasurer since 1916. Mr. Simmons is a member of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity.

SPANISH CLUB TO JOIN "INSTITUTO"

To Become Member of National Organization

Plan to Celebrate Cervantes Anniversary Here April 23

A very important meeting of the "Circulo Hispano" was held at seven o'clock Thursday night in the Music Hall. It was voted to adopt the badge designed by Professor J. Moreno Lacalle and pins will be ordered this week.

Rapport '25, president of the club, read a letter received by the head of the Department of Spanish, inviting the club to become affiliated with the "Instituto de las Espanas." The club voted to accept the invitation. The "Instituto" is an organization of Spanish clubs in colleges and universities throughout the country, with headquarters at New York City. It supplies the college clubs with special books, stereopticon views and lecturers on Spain and the Spanish speaking countries. It also offers a medal each year on April 23 to the student in each institution who hands in the best critical work on Cervantes.

To Celebrate April 23

The local club is making plans to celebrate April 23, the anniversary of the death of Miguel de Cervantes, by giving a Spanish entertainment in the Gymnasium. Professor Lacalle was empowered to appoint those who were to take part in the Spanish farce, dances, etc. Admission for this entertainment will be used to defray expenses of the club.

Following the business meeting, Senorita de Onate rendered piano selections. Games were played and refreshments were served.

WOMEN HEAR REPORTS OF S. V. DELEGATES

A large number of women attended the Y. W. C. A. meeting held in Pearsons Hall to hear the reports of the four Student Volunteers who attended the annual Student Volunteer conference held recently at Middletown, Conn. Ruth Moulton, '22, spoke of the work on campus, and of the Student Volunteers' endeavor to "carry on." She emphasized the need of willingness to give one's whole self to God. Gladys Thompson, '23, reported on an address on "The Macedonian Call", given by four speakers; one each from China, Japan, Persia, and the Philippines. Gladys Wright, '22, reported on the banquet, and on a stereopticon lecture on China. The meeting was in charge of Alice Kirkpatrick, '22, who gave a brief outline of the whole conference.

COLONEL J. AXTON SUNDAY PREACHER

Chief of Chaplains Speaks In Mead Chapel

Faith in Prayer Is Subject of Inspiring Vespers Sermon

Colonel John T. Axton, chief of chaplains of the United States War Department delivered a very inspiring sermon at vespers service in Mead Memorial Chapel Sunday afternoon upon the subject of prayer, and its influence upon world-wide events as well as upon the individual. Colonel Axton explained how four crucial events which have taken place in the last few years of world history are strikingly geared together, and the significance of this fact.

The first of these events was the Washington Conference when the wheels of war machinery were put into action in this country. The second great event was our recent celebration of Armistice day when the entire nation was silenced in prayer, as we paid homage to our unknown soldier. The third and fourth events may be compared as to attitude and results. The treaty which took place at Verseilles was characterized by greed and agressiveness. No lasting result will be derived from it. The conference which has just taken place at Washington was characterized by faith and freedom; the document proposed was one which could only be framed in a land of liberty.

Colonel Axton urged that we ask for divine guidance so that the final results of the four events might not be lost.

The chaplain told of the present feeling in many countries as expressed by such leaders as Lloyd George and General Diaz, that might will not succeed right, and that divine guidance, when recognized by men, will rule the universe. When men learn to think right, war and its problems will automatically disappear.

Finally, Colonel Axton pleaded to have the greatest possible faith; the faith of service and strength, coupled with righteousness, and that God might grant all this to us together with kindness and generosity and an ability to fill any position in which we may be placed.

PRESIDENT MOODY SPEAKS ON "THE MINISTRY"

ties. The pastor of a small church leads a more varied life than a man in any other calling. He goes from a wedding to a funeral, from a christening to a sick room; he bears every one's burdens and is asked to solve all sorts of problems. The tiring, constant need for adaptability requires that he be physically and mentally strong.

"His associates are the people of his community, good, bad, and mediocre. He is constantly encountering narrow-minded opposition and hypocrisy, and must not be afraid to tell the truth and to break precedents when necessary. The minister who thus keeps in touch with humanity finds the work intensely interesting and stimulating."

As regards preparation for the ministry, a college education is almost indispensable and a theological education quite so at the present day. "I advise a young man who is preparing to enter the ministry", said President Moody, "to spend some time between college and seminary, and directly after the seminary, in work of some kind which will bring him in contact with people and in which he can look on life from the layman's standpoint.

"In character, the minister of today must have the ability to do things, not merely to prevent wrong. There will always be a call for such ministers. The underpaid ministers of today, generally speaking, are those who lack ability. The highest salaried preacher in the United States does not get over $25,000 a year. The minister's rewards come not in money, but in the gratitude of those whose burdens he has eased and in his own satisfaction of work well-done.

"The better element of society is always for the church and the minister. He is made light of, caricatured, and scoffed at by many; yet he is respected and looked up to."

impurity of water, food, fertilizers, etc. Research work in the laboratory is very interesting to the chemist who desires to be a pioneer in science. The opportunities for invention are unlimited in chemical research. Professor Jones spoke in particular of the need of factories and city governments for experienced and trained chemists.

"Chemistry is by all means a learned profession and requires a thorough education," said Professor Jones. "A man who intends to enter chemistry should take a general college course including the other sciences as well as chemistry, also mathematics, at least through calculus, economics, and psychology. A reading knowledge of German and French is necessary— German especially, since the best writings and discussions in Chemistry are written in German. The student should not devote over one quarter of his time in college to chemistry. He should follow with higher study in a technical or graduate school if possible. "Remember that there is danger of too close specialization in a chemical education", cautioned the professor. "The fundamentals are absolutely necessary so that a man will be able later to handle any line of chemistry.

"A typical chemical career starts with qualitative analysis in the company's laboratory. Having mastered this, the beginner begins to study the significance of the analyses, the causes of abnormal product, and ways of improvement. If he does well, the young chemist may get a position of responsibility in the manufacturing end of the business, or he may become a regular research chemist and inventor. As to salaries, the beginner may get from $100 to $125 per month. After that there is no limit to the amount a chemist may earn through raising the profits of his company or through patents.

"The chemical profession is only for those who really love it", concluded Professor Jones. "Do not enter it if anything else satisfies you.

Dr. Jones graduated from Vanderbilt University in the class of 1903 and received the degree of Ph. D. from Harvard in 1908. For four years he was Instructor of Chemistry at the University of Illinois. In 1912, he went to Harvard where he now holds the position of professor of Industrial Chemistry.

CHEMISTRY SCHOOL TO OPEN JUNE 30

Will Offer Comprehensive Summer Program

Great Possibilities For Intensive Work In Chemistry

The School of Chemistry of the Fourteenth Summer Session of Middlebury College will begin June 30, 1922 and continue six weeks closing August 11. The program closely resembles that of last year, but is slightly more comprehensive. The special feature of the Chemistry School, which makes it peculiarly attractive to college students, is the possibility which it offers of concentrated work in this field. Students who register in the school may devote their entire time to the study of chemistry. Credits may be secured toward either of the baccalaureate degrees of A. B. or B. S., and in several of the courses credits may be secured toward the degrees of Master of Arts or Master of Science. The School will be under the direction of Professor P. C. Voter, as Dean. Professor Voter will have competent assistants in all courses.

Courses to Serve Four Groups

The special purpose of the School of Chemistry is to provide courses for several groups of students such as (a) medical, pre-medical, and biology students; (b) teachers of chemistry; (c) persons interested in the field of industrial chemistry; and (d) students desiring to begin or review general chemistry or repeat a second year of college chemistry. Courses will be offered in General Chemistry, Qualitative Analysis, Industrial Chemistry, Organic Chemistry, Organic Laboratory for Pre-Medical Students and Biologists; Technical Analysis, and the Teaching of Chemistry.

The Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association has given approval of the courses offered by the Chemistry Department of Middlebury College.

All of the facilities of the various laboratories of the Department of Chemistry are placed at the disposal of the Summer Session.

Of especial interest to college students are the courses in General Chemistry and Qualitative Analysis, since these enable the student either to supplement his regular course or, if for any reason it has been necessary to omit a course during the college year, to take it during the Summer Session. In General Chemistry either three or six credits may be secured; and in Qualitative Analysis, either four or six, depending upon the amount of time the student desires to devote to the work. Thus it will be seen that a complete year in either General or Qualitative Chemistry may be secured in the Summer Session by the earnest student. A circular of the School of Chemistry wlil be issued about March 20.

The Kane, Pa. high school basketball team which is coached by Philip D. Aines '21, by defeating Ridgway, won the championship of northwestern Pennsylvania.

Debating has been quite popular at Middlebury in recent years. A freshman debating society flourished for a time, and was reorganized again this year. In 1915-1916 a course in argumentation was given, for which undergraduate credits were awarded. A Discussion Club was organized in 1919 and the following year the Wetherell Debating Club was formed to arouse interest in debating, which during the war had been placed to one side. The name of the oraginzation was chosen in honor of Professor Archibald D. Wetherell '05, who had fostered debating activities at Middlebury. As a result of the activities of this organization a dual debate was held in 1920 with St. Lawrence University, and from this the present interest in debating at Middlebury has come. Last year a course in argumentation was offered by Professor Davison, twelve undergraduates electing the course.

Records of debates held since 1913 show that Middlebury has usually had the advantage in forensic contests. In 1913 the Middlebury freshmen won from the Norwich freshmen. The following year a triangular contest was held, Middlebury winning the state championship by successfully defeating Norwich and the University of Vermont. In 1915, Vermont captured their only recorded victory from Middlebury in this line of inter-collegiate activity, but lost to the home debaters the following year.
